When your letter of February 4th arrived, the Journals were all tied up in packages which were sent you yesterday. We did not send the copy to Mr. Jean Maunovry as you requested. I think when you see the bundles you will understand why we did not want to open the packages, and therefore passed the buck to you.

Dear Mr. Marvin:-

I beg to acknowledge receipt of the reprints of the list of publications from the rear cover of the Connecticut State article. May I call your attention to the fact that this seems to have been printed from the incorrect copy. This does not matter so much for the purpose we have in mind, circularization. If you have not, however, printed the same yet, I would suggest your incorporating the slight alterations indicated.

My dear Mr. Marvin:

I am planning now, unless something unexpected prevents, to go to Boston by boat Friday night, arriving there Saturday morning, and if convenient to you would like to call on you about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, May 22nd. Could you arrange, also, to have somebody from the Helistype Company meet me there?

We have another one of the monographs underway which ought to be ready very shortly now, and there are one or two points in regard to it that I would like to talk over with you and the heliotype man at the same time.

If this day and hour is not convenient for you, I could make it sometime the following Monday but am anxious to get down to Providence that day and so would prefer to see you Saturday, if possible.

NOTE FOR Mr. MARVIN.

September 29th, 1920

Bibliographic Notes

Dear Mr. Marvin:

In addition to the note on the Economy Board which is to be inserted just before the final paragraph, there is a bibliography - sheets for which are enclosed.

I enclose for a pattern the final sheet of one of the Indian Museum's monographs which has a number of elements which are admirable. You will note the large and small caps. for the author's name; the u.c. and l.c. for the title; italics for the names of periodicals, with l.c. references for pagination, etc.

I should ^{first} ~~like~~ like to have you set up a page involving a paragraph arrangement rather than this one. I see no advantage in the initial numerals and they could be omitted except when there is a text reference to them. I have not made these in my manuscript - do you consider them advisable?

You will recall that there is a footnote in connection with the Auriol Board. In the event of your affirmative reply, this of course could be omitted.

Do you consider the numerical order of the notes more desirable than the alphabetical listing by authors? A compromise could be effected whereby the alphabetical could be done and the insertion of the note numbers made ~~at~~ ^{now} ~~now~~. This might bring the co-efficient note number on the first or second page as No. 25, and that on the third as No. 3, but I see no objection to this.

You will note that there are two series of references - the second having to do with Finds which are treated alphabetically under the name of the place in which the Find occurred.

It is desirable that we take the utmost care in formulating a precedent which will serve as a model for future bibliographies. I should be very glad to have any suggestions which you may occur to you.

Very truly yours,

Sydney P. Noe

In the accompanying sheets == is for Large caps #1 on pattern single under-line for #2 (large & small caps); red underline for #4 (italics).

Mr. Arthur C. Wyman
c/o American Numismatic Society,
156 Street West of Broadway,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Wyman:-

Answering your letter of October 9th and October 15th, page proofs of the majority of Mr. Noe's article went forward last night, and the balance will probably follow tonight or tomorrow.

The copper plates have been received and are in good condition. We have also two articles of Mr. Newell's, and I am a little uncertain as to whether these are monographs or whether they are for part 3 of the Journal. If you will advise me I will start work on them at once.

The reprints of part 2 went forward to you on October 14th I believe, and I suppose you have received them by this time. The balance of part 2, that is the foreign numbers, have gone forward to-day, the domestic copies went last week, beginning Tuesday or Wednesday.

I have written to Washington for the blanks for the copyright and as soon as they are received I will copyright parts 1 and 2.

We will send you ^{tomorrow} tonight by ^{special post} ~~express~~ the unused balance of parts 1 and 2.

It has been very difficult to get action out of the compositor to whom I was obliged to go for Mr. Noe's monograph, and I have had him make up for me type, which order he has had now for over a week, and delivery of which is promised on Thursday, thereafter I shall do the composition in my own shop, except perhaps in the case of a large monograph, of which I will have the straight matter set by machine for economy sake, and I am sure that I can give you better service than I have been able to this month.

Yours sincerely,

Sam H. Allen

Dear Mr. Marvin:

Thank you for your letter of December 8th, and for that of the 13th which states that you are about to start the printing of the Andritsaena article. I think we have already written you about changing the year to 1924 on the cover, and putting the serial number on the shelfback.

With regard to Mrs. Brett's Lampsacus, I have not yet received it and cannot tell when I shall do so. I passed on your request regarding the plates, but if her plan of sailing on January 9th is carried out, it seems to me unwise to begin printing her article, because the necessary interruptions make it very improbable that first proof could be corrected before she leaves; and even if this were not the case, there are enough questions regarding second and final proof to make leaving them to others a questionable procedure. I will, however, communicate with you as soon as a decision is reached.

Thank you very much for the promptness of your reply.

Would the postponement of starting the work have any effect on the time required for it - by this I mean, are you likely to be so occupied with other work after January 1st, that this would be affected?

No, we did not expect you to make any rectifications. I was merely passing on to you some of the comment we had received.

Dear Mr. Marvin:

With respect to the guide lines used by you in our monographs, will you please let me know whether they are half or quarter point, and on what point rule? The printer of the Coin Bibliography is handling the first one of these for his firm, and the samples they have received to match our previous issues are half-point on a three-point rule. Is this correct?

It would help us a bit if you would telegraph your answer, but I should want this done at our expense, of course.

Dear Sir:

As a matter of formality, I am sending you the enclosed bill. I know through Mr. Wood of the specially heavy burden you have been under during the past year and it is, therefore, as I have said, a formality in sending it.

I think you know that Mr. Huntington has resigned from his position, necessitating our printing of our Monograph on the page with the enclosing lines, although the size of the page is not changed. Under these circumstances, I propose to send you some of our forthcoming work in order that you may again estimate on it. The Lancaster firm have given us a very low rate per page and it may be impossible for you to meet this. You will realize, of course, that I am under the necessity of placing the work where we can get the most for our money.

May I express the hope that 1927 may bring something brighter for you?

Incidentally, I am sending you by parcel post, a package containing some halftone cuts, and also a lot of characters which were some of them paid for by you, and some of them are collections here.
